

Education & Individual Development: Strengthening Competencies – Improving Opportunities

To better prepare people for the challenges of the future, improvements to the education system and opportunities for individual development are needed. Digitization is progressing and it is becoming increasingly important to have the necessary digital competencies. In addition, it is essential to improve teacher training to counteract the global teacher shortage and to have sufficiently well-trained teachers who can teach the next generation. The use of innovative methods for the therapy of people with mental stress or illness also helps to promote the participation of all people in society.
